Chapter 396: The Blessings of the Divine Triad

The Divine Blessings Spread Across Earth

In the wake of their transcendence to higher planes of existence, Sung Jin-Woo, Ashborn, and Sung Su-Ho continued to watch over the realms they had created, but they did not forget the lives of their followers, especially those on Earth. Their divine power, though boundless and far-reaching, still found its way to the world where their influence began. The connection between the Divine Triad and their priests, followers, and worshippers was not severed; in fact, it grew even stronger as the beings of Earth continued to offer their prayers.

As the prayers echoed across the realm, they did not go unanswered. The once distant, all-powerful beings that the people of Earth had worshipped now took direct action in response to their devotion. The world, once filled with sickness, weakness, and despair, began to transform in miraculous ways.

The Gift of Power

Among the most grateful were the low-ranking hunters, those who had long struggled to grow stronger in a world where power was everything. For many, leveling up had seemed like an impossible feat, an unachievable dream. But now, those who had earnestly prayed to the Divine Triad found themselves gifted with the System, a powerful and unique blessing that allowed them to level up.

The power that had once been reserved for the elite now flowed to the masses. No longer were these hunters bound by their limitations; the divine influence of the Triad granted them the strength to rise, to ascend, to become the very best versions of themselves. Even the weakest could now become strong, their prayers having been answered with the gift of the System, a path to limitless growth.

Healing the Unhealable

But it was not just power that the Divine Triad bestowed. There were those whose suffering was not physical, but deep and eternal—a suffering born from ailments beyond cure, from injuries that seemed impossible to heal. These people, the eternal sleep patients, those locked in a state of slumber with no hope for the future, received a gift beyond measure. With a touch of divine grace, they were given the elixir of life, a potion that could cure even the deepest of afflictions.

Those who had lain dormant for years, even decades, awoke. Their bodies, once withered by illness, now flourished, vibrant with vitality. The once-silent hospitals echoed with life as those who had been doomed to endless sleep opened their eyes, feeling the rush of warmth and life once again.

A World Transformed

The miracles did not stop there. Disabled people, whose bodies had been trapped in forms that could not function properly, found themselves whole again. Their prayers were heard, and they were granted the gift of a perfect body, free from the shackles of their impairments. No longer were there those born with disabilities, for the Divine Triad’s blessing had cleansed the world of such limitations.

The world was changing, not in small ways, but in monumental shifts. The weak were becoming strong, the sick were healed, and the disabled were restored. All it took was faith, devotion, and a prayer sent to the Divine Triad, who answered with the gifts of strength, health, and vitality.

There was no longer a need for hospitals to treat sickness, nor for gyms to help those seeking to grow stronger. The people of Earth were thriving, no longer hindered by the trials that had once bound them. And as their prayers were answered, they gave their unwavering loyalty and gratitude to the Divine Triad, the beings who had brought about such unprecedented change.

The Divine Triad’s Watchful Eye

While the miracles flowed to Earth and its people, Sung Jin-Woo, Ashborn, and Sung Su-Ho continued their divine work, not as rulers of an empire, but as protectors and guides for all who sought their aid. Even in their transcendent forms, they had not abandoned their followers; instead, they used their vast power to ensure that all who sought their help would receive it.

The Nine Divine Dragons stood beside their creators, ensuring that their divine will was carried out across the realms, both celestial and mortal. Their power was as vast as the heavens themselves, but it was tempered with the deep care they held for their worshippers.

A World of Endless Possibilities

As the Divine Triad's influence spread across the realms, Earth itself became a testament to the miracles that could occur when the gods truly answered their people's prayers. No longer would there be hunger or strife. No longer would there be death or disease. For the Divine Triad had answered the prayers of the people, and they had been granted everything they needed—and more.

The Earth was now a world where strength, health, and happiness were not merely the privilege of the few, but the birthright of all.

And as the world continued to flourish under the guidance of their divine creators, one thing was certain: the Divine Triad's reign would be one of peace, prosperity, and endless potential.
